CPRC Report Reflects Trends

The Black Voice News

RIVERSIDE

By Mary Shelton

Just five months before its 2007 report is due, the Community Police Review Commission in Riverside released its annual report for 2006.

The report which has yet to be orally presented to the city council was delayed months during the turmoil that shook the seven-year old commission since it issued its sustained finding on the fatal officer-involved shooting of Summer Marie Lane nearly two years ago.

Since that date, the commission has undergone many changes and has lost its executive manager, Pedro Payne and five commissioners to resignations. Two months ago, the city manager's office hired former Pomona Police Department Commander Kevin Rogan to be its new executive manager.

The ethnic and racial breakdown of who files complaints is similar to that in previous years.

African-Americans still are the most disproportionately represented, filing at least 22 percent of all complaints, even though they comprise about 7 percent of the city's population. Whites file 40 percent of the complaints, Latinos, 15 percent and Asian-Americans, 4 percent. About 4 percent of complainants designated as "other" and 15 percent of complaints were filed by people of unknown ethnic or racial origin.

The commission itself consists of one African-American, one Latino and seven White members.

Complaints are on average taking months longer to investigate than the department's guidelines recommend, according to the report. The department's policy states that serious complaints including excessive force allegations should complete their investigations in 60 days while those involving less serious allegations should take 30 days. However, the average length of time it took the department to investigate a complaint is 128 days, with monthly averages ranging from 72 to 475 days. About 86 percent of all complaints complete the process with the remainder being administratively closed.

The majority of allegations listed in complaints filed in 2006 involved violations of departmental policies followed by those alleging discourtesy by an officer. Of those sustained, most of them were included in these two categories as well.

The majority of the more serious allegations received not sustained findings from the CPRC with a 75 percent not sustained rate for excessive force allegations and rates of higher than 80 percent for criminal conduct, discrimination and harassment allegations. A complaint received a finding of not sustained when there was not enough information from the investigation to prove or disprove the allegation.

Most of the other categories did not reflect this trend with not sustained rates lower than 50 percent.

The number of complaints rose in 2006, but the number of allegations decreased from statistics collected in 2005.

Allegations in most categories decreased although due to a reclassification of complaint categories, it was not possible to make comparisons between this year and previous ones for some types of misconduct allegations. In some categories, the number of allegations went up.

Complaints involving discrimination and harassment sharply increased and came in at its highest number since the CPRC first heard complaints in 2001.

Even as certain types of allegations increased, the sustain rate fell dramatically during 2006, cutting itself almost in half.

Last year, the commission sustained 8.6 percent of all allegations. That was higher than the sustain rate of the department, which was 5 percent. The city manager's office which makes the final decision on the outcome of citizen complaint registered an even lower sustain rate of 4.6 percent.

The national average for sustained rates involving complaints filed at law enforcement agencies is about 15 percent, with only about 8 percent of excessive force complaints being sustained. The CPRC has only sustained about two allegations of excessive force since 2001 and none of those were last year and it's unknown what the department's statistics are on its own findings because the City Attorney's office does not allow this information to be released to the public.

Written requests for this information have been denied by the city attorney's office even though other cities in California provide the same statistical information to the public upon request.

OUT OF THE ASHES Evacuees Return Home

The Black Voice News

SAN BERNARDINO COUNTY

By Chris Levister

Their faces and stories etched in portraits of disaster Black fire evacuees quietly began their long journey home, Sunday. Some found their mountain homes, pets and possessions as they left them. Others remain in local shelters overwhelmed by their loss.

Regina Hayes was consoled by San Bernardino City Councilman Rikke Van Johnson Thursday as she sat on a bright green military cot at the National Orange Show (NOS) Disaster Relief Center. Her Lake

Arrowhead home a mound of ashes and rubble destroyed by the ferocious Grass Valley Fire that raced through her neighborhood chewing up 170 homes and businesses.

"I'm kind of dumbfounded wondering what to do next - It hasn't completely sunk in. There's just a lot to

Dr. Ernest Levister and his wife Chris ponder the pile of rubble and ash that is left of their neighbor's home in Lake Arrowhead. The fire came within feet of the Levister's home leaving minor damage.

Dr. Ernie and Chris Levister learned to appreciate life, looking at the smoldering ruins of their next door neighbor's Lake Arrowhead home. Chris found out it was okay to cry. And Ernie takes nothing for granted anymore, especially his life.

"We dodged the bullet," says the longtime BVN Health Columnist Dr. Levister. "You can look out and see paradise one day," Levister says. "The next, you can be sifting through ruins."

The Levister's were among the lucky ones. Their home was damaged but miraculously withstood the wind-driven Grass Valley Fire. Last week thick black smoke and ferocious flames sent residents fleeing and within hours consumed nearly 150 homes and businesses.

On Tuesday the couple returned home with a fire department escort to what is now a heavily guarded enclave of blackened hillsides, scorched pines, downed power lines, buckled pavement and towering piles of smoldering debris.

"We were told secure the house, take a few possessions and leave," said Chris a lawyer and BVN news reporter.

"I am awestruck by how Mother Nature chooses her victims. All around us people sifting through what's left - memories etched in ash. We're counting our blessings. We were spared," she said.

The longtime mountain residents say there is hope amid the ashes. They plan to thank the hundreds of fighters who worked to save their tranquil 'paradise'.

"The patient' is sick. We're thankful, resilient and have no plans to leave the mountain. Everyone will pull together and come back healthier," said Dr. Levister

Governor Promises "Follow Though"

Sunday morning Adam and Melissa Kimball leaned over the green military cots they've called home since the raging Grass Valley Fire drove them from their Lake Arrowhead home at sunrise October 22.

"Bye Bye," they said to a knot of Red Cross Volunteers standing in the cavernous Dumas dome at the National Orange Show Fairgrounds in San Bernardino. "We're going home."

The couple held back tears, and hugged the volunteers. Along with the memories they left behind was a handwritten note inscribed with two words: Thank you!

"We were treated like family" said Mr. Kimball.

If there is a bright spot in the wind-driven fire storm that raced across southern California last week it might be in the hearts and minds of evacuees like the Kimball's.

Monday morning the sprawling fairgrounds were abruptly transformed into a home away from home for thousands of local mountain residents chased out by the Grass Valley Fire near Lake Arrowhead and the Slide

Riverside Wants Your Help in Spending Millions

Riverside officials are looking for your ideas on spending money.

The mayor and city council need your ideas and input on how to spend $3.5 million dollars of Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) money they will get from the federal government. The U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development re-allocates this money back into local government to help people ease the pain of living below the poverty level. Now before you say, "they don't want my input," read this. I had thoughts along those same line before I met with Mayor Ron Loveridge and City Manager Brad Hudson, earlier this year. In those separate meetings they expressed the policy of the city and their own personal commitment to make sure this city not only talks about inclusion but practices inclusion. I can say I have witnessed their outreach efforts to include the Black community in the participation of city government. Are they where I want them to be? No, but they are making greater effort to include everyone, and this is another example. The city must follow a plan that involves community participation in order to receive the money from HUD. So get your thoughts together and let them hear from you.

Rev. Gantt of Second Baptist, Rev. L.E. Campbell of Park Ave. Baptist, Rev. Julio Andujo of Amos Temple, Rev. Munford of New Joy and other leaders, let your voices be heard. Inform the city on how and where $3.5 million should be spent in the city. They have scheduled meetings for November 7th at Bryant Park Community Center, 7950 Philbin St.; Nov. 14th at Villegas Park Center, 7260 Marguerita Ave; Nov. 19th at Hunt Park Community Center, 4015 Jackson St.; Nov. 28th Stratton Community Center at Bordwell Park 2008 Martin Luther King Blvd.; Nov. 29th at the Main Library downtown 3581 Mission Inn Ave.; Dec. 3rd at Janet Goeske Senior Center 5257 Sierra St.; and Dec. 5th at La Sierra Library, 4600 La Sierra Ave. All meetings will take place at 6:30 p.m.

Arrowhead Country Club Gives Honorary Membership to Jim Penman

We all learned recently that the Arrowhead Country Club issued a Honorary Membership to San Bernardino City Attorney Jim Penman. Now the city attorney's annual salary is well over $100,000 per year, enough for him to handle the $2,000 to $4,000 per year membership fee they require. In one report Penman shares half of the $300 dollar fee with his wife Judi Penman who is on the school board and executive director of the Chamber of Commerce. Penman says he has done nothing wrong and may not have, but the free gift makes one wonder why it was given. One of the many questions I have of the country club is how many honorary memberships have they offered to other public officials such as Danny Tillman, school board member; Rikke Van Johnson, city council member; would they qualify? I know I was never offered a membership while serving on the Board of Education, even though I have many friends who are members of the club and my retirement party from the school board was held there. I know that there are many parents of the club whose children attend schools in the district and who do business in the city, so the interest would be there. So, I would like for the Country Club to offer to us what the criteria is for this free honorary membership.

Now Penman said he does not use the golf course, tennis courts, skeet shooting range and other amenities, but the membership allows him access to the dining room only.

Whether Penman did anything wrong or the Arrowhead Country club gives out free honorary memberships to select elites of the community, it does not pass the smell test of ethical partnership.

MoVal Should Consult with Faith Leaders

The City of Moreno Valley approved an ordinance October 9th that would ban the establishing of churches in certain parts of the city. They later postponed that decision when people from local churches protested the decision. The council is expected to reconsider the law on Nov. 13th according to an article published in the Press Enterprise. As of right now churches are being established anywhere people can get a unoccupied building. I can understand what the city is trying to do but they would be wise to get the input from the people of faith in the city on this issue.

I am urging the pastors and church leaders to meet with the mayor and council to discuss their concerns before the final decision is made.

This coming Tuesday November 6th is Election Day and I am encouraging all of those eligible and registered to vote to please do so. Much has been given for this privilege and many are still fighting to keep that privilege. We have given you our recommendations so the rest is up to you.

Alzheimer's Disease

Dear Editor

Growing old gracefully is easier said than done - the mirror can betray the fact that we may feel 10 years younger on the inside. But with the laugh lines comes the wisdom and the ability to look back fondly on a life well-lived. We dream about our golden years as a time to be with our families and enjoy our favorite pastimes, like golfing or gardening. But for the more than 5 million people living with Alzheimer's disease and their families, the reality is far different.

According to the National Institutes of Health (NIH), Alzheimer's disease is the most common form of dementia among older people - and I believe it. Every day it seems I hear about another person who is experiencing the impact of Alzheimer's. It is a condition that gets worse over time, and it is fatal. Just last year my own mother-in-law died from the disease. Alzheimer's destroys brain cells, causing problems with memory, thinking and behavior severe enough to affect work, lifelong hobbies or social life, according to the Alzheimer's Association. To put it simply, Alzheimer's disease isn't about forgetting an acquaintance's name; it's forgetting your wife's name.

Larry Lucas

Alzheimer's disease is a particularly serious issue for the African American community. A recent article in the Houston Chronicle reports that Alzheimer's occurs among Blacks at a much higher rate than among whites - from 14 percent to 100 percent higher. According to the Alzheimer's Association, some of the possible reasons are that African American's have higher rates of blood pressure and diabetes, all risk factors for Alzheimer's.

It's important to recognize the difference between normal age-related memory changes and possible warning signs of Alzheimer's disease. Some symp-ptoms to look for include memory loss, difficulty performing tasks, problems with language, problems with abstract thinking or loss of initiative, according to the Alzheimer's Association. If you think you or a loved one are experiencing symptoms of Alzheimer's related dementia, it's very important to seek medical advice. An early diagnosis is so important because it eliminates uncertainty and also gives you a better chance at benefiting from treatment. Diagnosing this disease can be difficult, but researchers at Stanford University have recently developed a single blood test that, according to preliminary studies, is able to identify patients with Alzheimer's disease and may even predict the likelihood of developing the diseases.

There is life after diagnosis, in the early stages. Plan now for the future; your family can honor your wishes when it becomes too difficult to live independently. To help maintain your or a loved one's independence, the Alzheimer's Association recommends you take certain steps, like get help with daily tasks, use memory aids like labels and lists, stay active and take your medicines as prescribed.

Just over 10 years ago, there were no treatments for Alzheimer's disease.

Today, however, because of advances in pharmaceutical research, there are medicines available to treat this cruel disease and help slow its symptoms. These medicines have improved the quality of life for many patients and the loved ones who care for them. And new medicines are being studied that offer the hope that one day Alzheimer's disease will be a treatable or preventable condition not to be feared as it is now. In fact, a new survey by the Pharmaceutical Research and Manufacturers of America (PhRMA) revealed 27 new medicines in development for Alzheimer's disease.

If you or a loved one has been diagnosed with Alzheimer's, you may find your dreams for retirement taking a different path. But know that it is possible to live with Alzheimer's in the early stages if you make simple adjustments, take your medicines as prescribed, follow safety precautions and have the support of others.

Larry Lucas is a vice president for Pharmaceutical Research and Manufacturers of America (PhRMA).

National Black Out Day, Friday, November 2, 2007

On Friday, November 2, 2007, Warren Ballentine, Reverend Al Sharpton and other civil rights leaders are calling for a national boycott. Black people alone spend 2 billion dollars a day in the United States and we are only approximately 12% of the population. 2 billion dollars a day, lining the pockets of companies that have shown no interest in our interests. We ARE living in the new civil rights movement. We cannot allow the march in Jena to be only an event.

It MUST be a movement. In the 1950s, the bus boycott was only supposed to be for a few days or weeks. It ended up being over a year. The goal was for fair treatment and bus integration. Our parents and grandparents sacrificed and showed that with faith and strength, they could show corporate America the power of the community and demanded fair treatment. As we know, those buses were integrated.

CORRECTION:

In last week's BVN, we incorrectly identified Rialto Police Chief Mark Kling.

This is not about color. This is about class. The middle class and poor people in this country are not treated as the Declaration of Independence says we should be treated. It states that "all men are created equal". Clearly the governing class of the United States disagrees with their document.

Join us on Friday, November 2, 2007 and don't spend ANY money. If you have to shop, do it the day before or the day after. If you need gas, get it the day before or the day after. We have to join together as a community. You may be thinking, it's only one day, what difference will it make? I had the same thought at first, but just think about it. If we all save our money that day, it WILL make a difference. That day may become a weekend. That weekend may become a week and that week a month. As we showed in the 1950s, we can make a difference if we do this together.

Unhealthy Air

The thick black smoke and ash that enveloped Southern California most of last week has eased thanks to cool moist winds and a hand from above. But don't let what you can't see fool you.

The smoke pushed fine particle pollution, products of combustion to include a mixture of plastics and house contents a known health hazard, to its highest levels of the year last week. This mixed with typical urban smog and now coastal winds are blowing that mixture that hovered over the ocean back into the Inland area. It's a lethal cocktail.

The particles that are virtually invisible to the eye impact Our Body. Last week hundreds of people sought medical help for breathing problems. Many Inland hospitals and doctors reported increases in the number of people treated for air way irritation and exacerbation of asthma and other chronic lung conditions such as emphysema.

While local schools have reopened and it is okay for children to go outside there is still danger lurking in the air. Elderly people, children, heavy smokers and people with heart or lung conditions particularly should limit vigorous exertion and drink plenty of water. The next few days may be a good time to pull out the video game or snuggle up with a good book.

Health studies have linked fine particle pollution to heart attacks, cancer, early deaths and with chronic exposure, stunted lung development in young children. Short term exposure can cause itchy watery eyes, skin irritation, coughs, sore throats, sinus problems and transient wheezing.

Use common sense. Protect yourself; use a particle mask like the surgeons. Even if the flames are out in your area, smoldering fires and ash still pose danger to your health and wellbeing.

Family Talks

Joseph A.
BAILEY, II
M.D., F.A.C.S.

As a beginning teenage car driver I learned that Low gear, the most powerful gear, is for the difficult job of getting the car started and for heavy pulling; Second gear, for picking up more speed; High gear, for normal driving; and Reverse gear, for going backwards. Similarly, apart from reasonable work not being available, most people work in first or second gear. First gear is the "working poor" doing thankless hard work and without job promotions or job pleasure. They are "the last hired and first fired". Many are masochistic "Make Do" people with Enslaved Minds who will always struggle. Second gear is done by "work to live" people who are told what to do. The job pays just enough money to allow for reasonable survival for the family and that seems good enough for them. Since most are not motivated to "save for a rainy day," they spend much time sleeping late; working only from 8:00 am to 5:00 pm with a need to take "breaks"; "chilling out" with friends, and taking days off wherever the opportunity arises. Third gear workers straddle "Being" and "Doing." To "Be" means working just hard enough to take care of creature comforts-e.g. an acceptable home in an acceptable environment; sporadically dining out, or buying an expensive television-and with a hazy attitude of wanting to "be somebody." Although they "Do" work properly, it is usually at a level below their capabilities or Purpose in life.

Fourth gear is inside the world of "Doing" good work as a means to a greater goal in life. "Working smart" is doing whatever in order to open up opportunities to bigger and better things. Thus, you work with a sense of urgency to finish your job and help others do their jobs so as to learn all you can. You figure out things that need to be done; give it a great deal of thought; and then do an excellent job. Since work provides pleasure and satisfaction, there is no desire to sleep late and take frequent breaks or vacations. Being invaluable to the company is insurance against being fired. Fifth gear is work dedicated to reaching your destination in life by "Doing" for and relying on yourself. You are determined to go straight ahead and not allow anybody or anything to stop you. You are a self-starter, thinking about every little thing you do, and paying great attention to detail. Constantly thinking allows you to stay on top of things that suddenly pop up. You creatively take advantage of the smallest opportunity by following leads others would overlook. You do more work than play; do things well; and work with a sense of urgency.

Sixth gear is a total dedication to "Win-Win" or to Selfless Service whereby working to make the lives of others better can approach 24/7 (24 hours a day/7 days a week). Working for yourself and for others can not be distinguished. It must be done by Working Smart (getting the biggest return for the work done)--with eagerness and with a sense of urgency. This requires perfecting skillful ways to effectively use parts of seconds. You have an appreciation for being able to work and that enables you to generate fun out of hard work. Learning, organizing, following the truth wherever it leads, and constantly creating are as exciting as any wholesome thing. However, by being totally focused on your mission means practically every other aspect of life gets inadequate or no attention-and that makes for some problems. But the effects of those problems are wiped out by the rewards of your creative and productive work. Being comfortable working in Sixth gear is a skill transferable into every aspect of your life where serious work is needed-and it guarantees Success!

Help To Oust Or Improve Negative Influences And Role Models

For better or worse, celebrities are role models. Society chooses who are to be celebrities; therefore, society chooses role models. Often the lifestyle of a Black character on television or in the movies helps shape the direction of Black society. Denzel Washington is currently portraying a real life Black gangster in the movie American Gangster. Gangsters portrayed on the big screen ultimately become role models for criminal-minded individuals. I will not pay my money to see the movie, although I will wait until it is shown on television so I can see it free. If we all do this, we can drive down an explosion of Black films where Black-on-Black crime is glorified.

Research has shown that 85 - 95% of the young African American men incarcerated (between 18 - 30 years old) have similar role models (gangsta rap & hip-hop, movies, and/or sports celebrities) whereas only 5 - 10% African American men of similar age in a graduate program at a university share the same choices of role models as those incarcerated. Copying negative role models is a huge problem in the Black community. Many Black male graduate students admire renown Black scientists, engineers, and businessmen such as Earl Gilbert Graves, Sr., of "Black Enterprise Magazine," and CEOs of major corporations such as Dick Parsons, of AOL, Stanley O'Neal, of Merrill Lynch, or Kenneth Chenault, of American Express; while, ironically most incarcerated young Black males would consider them sellouts. The way many young Black males dress indicates who inspires them most.

What would be the impact if everyone tired of Black-on-Black crime waited for the TV airing of American Gangster? I'd rather see the movie studio lose money than see more Black parents lose children. Though we're only 12% of the population in America, prison is almost 47% Black, which is a lot of role model potential, if this movie is a blockbuster. Gangster movies and gangster rap images are irresistible temptation to young Black males looking for a hero. It's no wonder that in all negative statistics, such as prison population and school dropout rates, Blacks are the leaders. Wealth and fame seldom brings class or changes a selfish heart and corrupt mind.

An email crusade can slow, stop, or perhaps reverse our downward spiral towards becoming a permanent underclass. We must hold role models accountable because their actions often affect social standards. Celebrities are given the power of influence and should be required to act responsibly and should not glorify thug life and/or set poor examples. The Bible says in Luke 12:48 (KJV) For unto whomsoever much is given, of him shall be much required...

All socially conscious people concerned about the negative stronghold certain celebrities have on society should stop contributing to their wealth. After a celebrity is arrested and found guilty of any felony crime or act in a vile manner publicly, they should no longer be allowed to influence our young Black men. What do you think of role models promoting the N word?

For instance, Rapper Nas has a new album about to be released with the N word in its title. Nas and the company that produced the album should be boycotted. If we did this, other rappers would not be so apathetic. Nas is confident that mature people will do nothing but grumble, while shortsighted young people will hip-hop all the way to the music store. Nas realizes that there are thousands of parents, community activists, educators, clergy, and morally sound Black adults trying to discourage the use of the N word. Nas might be ignorant to the power of his own negative influence; therefore, we must send him a wake-up call. We must not allow negative role models to decrease the potential of success to gullible minds and future generations.

If just the families that loss a loved one to Black-on Black crime, have a loved one hooked on drugs, dropped out of school, or serving prison time speak out against every negative role model influence, statistics on every level would slowly begin to turn in our favor. Let's silently protest by keeping your dollars in your pocket. Email others for additional support.

The percentage of allegations that received unfounded findings varied greatly depending on which agency was making the findings.

The CPRC decided that 32 percent of the allegations were unfounded while unfounded findings were assigned by the police department to 76 percent of all the allegations it investigated.

The city manager's record for unfounded findings was in the middle of these two figures at 62 percent.

The CPRC also has a much higher percentage of complaints which are not sustained and those which receive exonerated findings than either the police department or the city manager reported.

A trend tracked by the CPRC in its annual report is how many officers have received multiple complaint allegations. Currently, about 14 officers or about 4 percent of the department's officers have received multiple allegations with half receiving at least one sustained allegation. Two officers have received five or more allegations with at least one sustained allegation.

Other trends in the annual reports mirror those recorded in previous ones leaving the text virtually unchanged, though there have been some improvements in several areas.

Patrol officers are required under departmental policy to activate their audio recorders in professional contacts that they initiate. Full compliance is elusive even after five years but the department has taken an active role in enforcing this policy when violations occur.

Many of the problematic trends involve how the department conducts its investigations involving incustody deaths and citizen complaints.

The department's policies and procedures including departmental policies 4.8, 4.12 and the department's conduct and performance manual for administrative investigations mandate certain requirements in areas where the department still has problems, including how interviews with witnesses and officers are conducted and whether the internal affairs division is conducting its incustody death investigations as required by departmental policy.

The stipulated judgment between the department and the State Attorney General's office also required the department to conduct unbiased, thorough and timely investigations, but it's clear if the CPRC's trends are correct representations of reality that more work needs to be done in this area.

One noted trend which has been in quite a few annual reports now stated that the administrative investigators, be they internal affairs sergeants or field sergeants, should ask questions that "elicit facts and opinions and not desired responses" which are referred to as leading questions.

Even though the department's performance manual lists some "common pitfalls" which include "leading questions", failure to interview all witnesses and "refreshing a witness' memory" which are to be avoided, these problems were noted in this latest annual report as they have been in previous editions.

The commission also noted that complaint interviews had been seen during investigations reviewed by it where witnesses' credibility are questioned and not the officers'.

An area of investigation where the department improved was that there were not as many cases where supervisors were assigned to investigate complaints they were involved in as in the past. The commission urged the department to "take those steps necessary to ensure the complete elimination of complaint investigations by supervisors involved in the complained-of incidents".

The annual report will be available at the CPRC office on the Sixth Floor of City Hall and online at <http://www.riversideca.gov/cprc>.

GOVERNOR

Fire near Running Springs.

Sunday mandatory evacuations were lifted in the non-burned areas, the Kimball's and other evacuees were given the green light to return home with a promise from Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger. "State and local governments will not leave you behind."

Days before the center took on a red carpet like atmosphere when the governor who many called the 'terminator' toured the area's largest evacuation center kissing babies, signing autographs and taking time to talk with children and parents.

"Are you getting enough to eat?" he asked Michelle Hayes whose home burned in the Green Valley Lake blaze. "It's dramatic to lose your home or be evacuated. I want you to have a place to stay - get a hot shower some food and be treated well and the babies have their formula and diapers, Schwarzenegger told the admiring crowd. "I talked to several people who say they've gained 10 pounds since they came here. Maybe we're feeding you too much," said the governor to roaring applause.

"It's not the Katrina response we feared," said Haynes one of a small number of African Americans who took shelter at NOS. "We were expecting history to repeat itself.

It was clean, efficient and the people were nice. We got the treatment we deserved," Haynes said.

The lock step local and state response was a stark contrast to the New Orleans disaster, as the center ramped up to shelter, feed and nurture more than 3,000 registered aid recipients. At its peak the center provided emergency services to as many as 4,000 evacuees.

The governor praised local disaster efforts here and across the fire ravaged Southern California calling California a "model state" in terms of mobilizing an unprecedented bank of resources.

Signing the jacket of U.S. Forest Service firefighter Bobby Vega the governor told evacuees, "We have the bravest, most talented, toughest firefighters in the world."

Local and state leaders including supervisors Paul Baine, Dennis Hansberger, and Josie Gonzales announced a "one stop shop" resource center on the fairgrounds.

"I just want a hot shower and a clean shirt," Pedro Rodriguez told Baine.

Baine, County Board of Supervisors chairman, said the new Fire Emergency Local Assistance Center will remain open for several days after the last evacuees have gone home serving as a command post and resource for a host of services including insurance claims and temporary housing assistance.

SB Mayor Patrick Morris announced countless businesses and private citizens have pledged hundreds of thousands of dollars in cash, food, water, lodging cell phone and medical services for firefighters and evacuees. He said neighboring Riverside along with several tribes have also pledged large financial donations.

After evacuation orders are lifted donated supplies including toiletries and clothing will be available to evacuees through local charities.

"Our job won't end when you go home," said Assemblymember Wilma Amina Carter. "We're here for the long haul."

"The cooperation has been impressive. Everyone put aside their differences and stepped to the plate. This is a watershed moment for the Inland Empire," said Councilman Rikke Van Johnson.

"The most important thing we can do for you now is to hold your hand when you need us most," said Schwarzenegger. "You have my personal commitment - the state of California will complete this mission - We will follow through."

Resources For Maximizing Your Conference Experience

You already know how important networking is to your business, and your calendar has been populated with several events per month. It's time to make sure that all that money and time you have invested is put to good use. Here are some resources to help you maximize your conference experience.

TRAVEL

These resources help you find good deals on your travel needs.

For organizing and planning your travels, I recommend using Google Calendar <<http://www.google.com/calendar/>> along with either Google Notebook <<http://www.google.com/notebook/>> or Backpack <<http://backpackit.com/?referrer=BPBLSZ7>>, but any calendar and word processor application will do.

PROMOTIONAL ITEMS

Consider some light weight promotional items to carry with you. You can give these to people you network with or leave them at strategic locations throughout the venue.

Depending on the dress code and venue, wear company branded shirts along with other branded items such as, backpacks, mouse pads, hats, etc...

Don't forget to add business cards to your travel checklist.

CREATING BUZZ

Publicize prior to the event on your website and blog. Update your blog during and after the event to draw people looking for more information about the event.

Send out a newsletter to your key clients with a summary of valuable information learned at the event.

NETWORKING STRATEGIES

Read How to Win Friends & Influence People at least twice and listen to the audio version while in transit.

Before the event, identify who you want to meet and create an agenda for each person you identified. Read up on the background of each person you plan to meet and their company. If possible, make contact prior to the event and look for ways to help that person or their company.

Keep a pen handy to write key facts on the back of business cards you obtain to serve as reminders later.

FOLLOW UP

Invest in a business card scanner and make sure that you schedule a follow up task for each person. I suggest you check out HighRise <<http://www.highrisehq.com/>> for that purpose.

"Feed Your Spirit" During the days when we are giving on demand, we need a constant source of nourishment for ourselves as well. Psalm 42:1-4 provides a mental picture of the many moms who'd love to spend time with God but can't seem to fit it into their hectic days: "As the deer pants for streams of water, so my soul pants for you, O God. my soul thirsts for God, for the living God. When can I go and meet with God?" (vv.1-2)

October was a crazy and fast paced month for the offices of PSP! However, we do want to thank everyone for their continued support and business. Last week the Black Voice News held a breakfast for their Foundation at the Hilton in San Bernardino sponsored by Southern California Edison. I was able to attend and see the tremendous support from the community and corporate circles. Frank Quevedo from Southern California Edison was slated to bring remarks, however, the fires and a cold held him back. John Kennedy stepped to the plate and represented the company and showed their continued support for the work of the Foundation. Thank you!

As I reflect on the various events that we are honored to be a part of in the community, one of the subjects I think about is the budget. As many begin to prepare for the holidays and the various events that will take place over the next several weeks, stop and think realistically about the following questions...

o What is the main goal of your event or function? Is it to have fun or is it to raise funds?

o Who's your audience? Who are you trying to attract?

o What is your budget? What resources do you have available to you to accomplish your desire?

This may seem like a very simple question, but you would be surprised how many times people really don't think the financial side through on their project. Of course most people want champagne on a beer budget. If you stop and really work through all of the avenues available to you, it might be possible to at least get a good wine. Are you able to barter for any of the services that you need to accomplish your goals without exhausting your cash flow? Figure out what are your fixed costs (what you absolutely need to accomplish your event) and what are variables that you can play with? Once you are able to put all of this down on paper, you will then have a realistic view of what you are working with.

One of the most common mistakes organizations overlook when it comes to the budget is the plus plus (+ +) that hotels charge on top of their meal fee.

For example, if the hotel says it will cost $50.00 per person ++, that means you have to add the tax, gratuity and service fee which ends up around an additional $12.00, which means your meal is actually costing you around $62.00. Get all the facts!

If you have an event or community question, please email me at Wendy@personalservicesplus.com. We thank you for supporting those that give back to our community to make it a better place!

Give your all in all that you do. Then the PLUS won't just be more, it will be the difference!

Running Springs evacuee Regina Hayes is consoled by SB City Councilman Rikke Van Johnson. Hayes' home was destroyed by the Slide Fire.

take in. I've lost everything. I think the word that comes to mind is that it is surreal,"...said Hayes.

The flames are all but extinguished, but for Eva Reese the garish headlines and surreal images of California in flames is a bittersweet reminder of her worse nightmare. The African-American bookkeeper and Running Springs homeowner stretches out on a blue cot cluttered with newspaper headlines screaming "No End in Sight". For nearly a week she remained glued to live television coverage since the Slide Fire chased her from her Smiley Park neighborhood early Monday. Reese covers her face and cries - her entire community was destroyed.

"It hasn't hit me yet. I can't go back. The fires are still smoldering. I'm just waiting to exhale."

On a bright note, says Reese unlike the Katrina debacle, local rescue efforts have been impressive. "Food, counseling, information, I have no complaints. Everybody was so caring and helpful, but when it came to sharing our stories with the world - we were invisible - the cameras and microphones just passed us by," said Reese.

Martin and Beebe Daniels made a pact during the devastating fire of 2003 not to leave their Lake Arrowhead dream home if they thought they could save it. Monday night at the Red Cross evacuation center in San Bernardino a chaplain prayed with the couple - their home burned to the ground.

Mr. Daniels recalled Wednesday the crush of news reporters cross-crossing the sprawling evacuation center - the constant hum of broadcast equipment beaming live breaking news to a world hungry for every flaming detail.

"A reporter asked me - are you a volunteer? When I told him I was evacuated from Lake Arrowhead, he said 'are you serious' Blacks don't live in the mountains. I guess he couldn't envision Black folk living outside the ghetto," said Daniels.

Betty and Wiley Owens and their dog Speckles fled their Green Valley Lake home when they saw flames racing over the ridge. Monday night the evacuees slept in their RV - outside NOS.

The moment the Owens sniffed smoke Monday morning, they flashed back to the 2003 Old Fire.

"It was devastating. This is a nightmare rekindled."

Christopher Chatman was working at a storage facility in Rim Forest early Monday when the Slide fire approached his rented home. He recalls attending a hip-hop concert at NOS, Monday night the Running Springs fire evacuee slept there.

Diane Lowe, felt faint, overwhelmed and dehydrated Monday afternoon. The longtime Cedar Glen homeowner has no history of high blood pressure - on Wednesday when doctors at NOS took her pressure it was dangerously high.

Live-in caretaker Diane Cooper was preparing breakfast for her 82-year-old charge in Lake Arrowhead early Monday morning. Thursday night she was homeless, jobless and itching to shed the black t-shirt and gray pants she'd worn for four days.

Robert Wilson who moved to Crestline from Houston two weeks ago lost two cousins to Katrina. He witnessed first hand the horrors of African-Americans left behind to perish in the New Orleans Superdome. At the Houston Astro Dome evacuation center he served flood victims as a volunteer. On Tuesday night wearing a Red Cross identification band Wilson his wife and 2 children saw their fortunes go from Katrina volunteers to Grass Valley victims.

Gary Friley and his family traded their old mountain digs for a new home in Cedar Glen four weeks ago. Thursday night the Lake Arrowhead Elementary School 5th grader and his new playmate Kashawn Doyle sat on a cluster of cots sharing laughs, snacks and a game of Monopoly.

Cheryl Hendrickson of Crestline is disabled and loves to share stories about the thickets of pine and oak that drew her to the tight-knit mountain enclave but never envisioned sharing them at an evacuation center.

Wealthy, poor, insured, destitute, lucky, homeless, Regina Hayes, Reese, the Daniels, Nelson, the Owens, Chatman, Lowe, Cooper, Wilson, Friley, Doyle and Watson are faces in the sea of whites and Spanish speaking evacuees hoping to return home. They share a common bond. They are victims of the Grass Valley and Slide fires that raced through the San Bernardino National Forest last week. They are among a hand full of African-Americans evacuees who sought refuge at NOS. Like thousands of other evacuees they have stories to tell, worries to worry, lives to renew, decisions to make, fears to fear.

For many people home is the center of their universe, for this knot of African-Americans the road back to that universe is fraught with anxiety, fear, survival, worry, and something more, an indelible snapshot of Katrina.

"Right now I'm on a roller coaster of emotions - like sitting on the edge of a cliff. I haven't slept for days. The whereabouts of the elderly woman I cared for since 2005 is unknown. I don't know the fate of the house, I have no transportation, no insurance, no income and without the ID I left up there I can't prove mountain residency," says Diane Cooper.

Still Cooper is keeping hope alive. On Thursday she volunteered at her shelter handing out bags of toiletries to fellow evacuees.

"God is telling me to be grateful for what the fire spared - my life."

Throughout the fire ravaged region hundreds of evacuees have shared their stories to a world hungry for instant details of personal tragedy, heroism, hardship and hope.

"Fire has a way of stripping you naked and leaving nothing recognizable. It can also forge a powerful bond," says Beebe Daniels.

The prayer circle the Daniels started around a cluster of cots in the center's Damus building grew from seeds to a blossom of 12 African-Americans evacuees.

"Faith keeps hope alive," said Cedar Glen evacuee Paula Watson.

Whitney Fischer tuned out the constant glare of camera flash, babies crying and children playing. In her hand is a small worn Bible. "It's my rock".

As most of these evacuees packed what for some may be their only possessions - the bond is forged.

"Finally we get to go home," said Jones. Back to the center of their universe - For some there's luck waiting in the wings. For others portraits etched by a disaster.

"I don't want to see it. I don't want to go back to a place where everything that is familiar, things that I cherished for years, is gone," said Hayes.

"We'll stay in touch," said Beebe Daniels. "Maybe have a reunion." Yea Hendrickson said laughing.

"We'll shed tears, laugh and tell some stories. With a hand from heaven we'll rebuild, renew and go on. It's just stuff we've been blessed with our lives," after all said Daniels, "what else is important?"

North Reigns in Crosstown Rival King

The Black Voice News

RIVERSIDE

By Gary Montgomery
Staff Writer

The Ivy League's first high school edition of Monday Night Football didn't seem to suit the Husky's or the Wolves very well or the fans for that matter. Underdog, Riverside King High spent the entire first half and most of the third quarter trying to figure out how to get into the in zone. On a positive note, King was able to hold North's explosive offense to a mere 14 points in the first half.

The Huskies just couldn't get their high powered scoring machine going. North entered Monday's game averaging more than 30 points per game. "We didn't have a good week of practice with all the smoke and stuff, so our passing game was kind of off a little bit and we had trouble running the ball," said North quarterback Jamar Calhoun.

Last week's disastrous fire storms and subsequent bad air quality had forced the postponement of the game until Monday and caused most Inland area teams to move their practices inside.

With King (4-4, 1-2) only trailing 14-0 in the second half the Huskies' (7-1, 2-0) faithful fans were getting restless. "I wish we were playing a little better game tonight," said North Principal Dale Kinear.

The Huskies' offense only generated 4 net passing yards, a season low for the team. North running back Cedric Foster picked up the slack with three rushing touchdowns on 13 carries and 97 total rushing yards. All purpose running back James Calhoun broke the game open with a 65-yard punt return for a touchdown.

With 8:15 left in the 3rd quarter King's Jacey Naea broke out of the pack for a 35-yard scamper down the right side line before North's James Calhoun could run him down saving a sure

James Calhoun responded immediately by returning the punt 65-yards for a touchdown giving North a 21-7 lead.

After exchanging unsuccessful possessions North's Denzel Cooley made the play of the game. Cooley hit King's Joe Salazar during a punt return and caused Salazar to cough up the football. North recovered the ball on the 24-yard line. Three plays later Cedric Foster scored his third touchdown on a 9-yard run to make the score 28-7 and end King's hopes of an upset.

The Huskies Lester White added a final touchdown on a 2-yard run with .58 seconds left in the game.

On a night when neither team could pass the ball North's speed and athleticism became the deciding factor and was just too much for King to overcome.

Cosby Comes to the IE

The Black Voice News

SAN BERNARDINO

By Lea Michelle Cash

It is hard to believe that Bill Cosby is 70 years old. Few entertainers have achieved the legendary status that he has achieved with five decades of success in concert appearances, recordings, television, films, lifelong learning, writing and philanthropy. He is literally one of the most popular personalities in America, affectionately known as "the Cos" establishing a reputation as a hilariously warm-hearted story teller, weaving tales about childhood and parenting that sends millions of adoring fans into a full laughing uproar.

Recently on Thursday, October 18, the Cos came to the Inland Empire at San Manuel Indian Bingo & Casino in Highland, bringing our area his charm and humorous wit. He leisurely strolled out on stage, wearing his traditional sweat shirt and sweat pants, fiddled with his mic and began his conversation with the sound technicians who needed to adjust the sound system. Cos invited the audience into his conversation and used them to support his issue that the sound system needed adjusting.

When he turned his full attention to the fans, he delivered a few legendary fatherly jokes and anecdotal tales. He told tales about how to drive your wife crazy, discussed gambling, husband jokes about how they don't own anything, menopause, Viagra, the side affects of some drugs, how he fell in love at the age of 14, what it's like to be

Over the years, the Cos has earned a Master's Degree and Doctorate in Education from the University of Massachusetts. Among his many awards are: nine Emmy's, eight People's Choice, eight Grammys, 13 BMIs, and two Golden Globes. He has been honored with the Presidential Medal of Freedom, a Kennedy Center Lifetime Achievement Award, and four NAACP Image Awards.

For many years, the Cos has been on a personal crusade to advance education, personal responsibility and parenting in low income areas around our country. He is also an advocate toward the plight of children living with a u t i s m . As a veteran stand-up performer he is

Common Myths And Mistakes About Estate Planning

By Richard Nevins
Attorney at Law

Estate Planning can be a complicated area of the law where myths abound and mistakes can be harmful to you and your loved ones. Here is a list of common myths about estate planning.

I don't need a Will because I don't own very much.

If you don't create a valid Will, the State of California has a series of laws, known as intestate succession, that will determine where your assets go and who will control everything that you own. State law may not distribute your assets to the people you want to have them. If you want to nominate a guardian for your children, then you need a will.

Many people wrongly assume that the only important asset is money, when in reality some of the most difficult family disputes involve the inheritance of personal possessions, like family photographs and heirlooms.

I don't need an estate plan because I hold all my assets jointly with another person.

This is one of the most dangerous ways to plan your estate. When you add another person to your bank account or to your real estate as a joint tenant, you are exposing that asset to every current and future creditor of that new joint tenant. The asset will also be exposed to gift tax, capital gains tax and estate taxes. Joint ownership does not avoid probate. Probate is delayed until the last joint owner's death.

If I have a good Will, probate will not be required, and my assets can be transferred immediately to the beneficiaries of the Will.

In fact, having a Will mandates a probate in most circumstances and the assets may not be transferred to the heirs for months or years.

Probate is a court proceeding to transfer title from the decedent's name to the living beneficiaries. Probate occurs in the state of your legal residence as well as in any state where you own real property. The length of time to complete a Probate varies, but can take six to eighteen months, on average.

If my assets are few, I will avoid probate.

In California, if you have a house worth more than $100,000, your estate will probably require probate, unless you use a Living Trust or some other probate-avoidance technique.

A Will covers all my assets.

Wills do not cover assets held as joint tenants with right of survivorship, retirement plans, annuities, life insurance, bank or investment account with transfer on death designations.

I can do my own estate plan.

Estate planning is more than just creating documents. It is understanding the big picture and how the legal documents will work in concert with the assets at the time they are needed.

You can't afford to rely on myths when it comes to your estate. Find out the facts, plan carefully and execute a plan to provide you with peace of mind and security for your loved ones.

Community Foundation Director, Dr. Jim Erickson is presented a check by San Bernardino Mayor Patrick Morris and Riverside Mayor Ronald Loveridge to aid fire victims in the recent wildfires.

By Ashley A. Jones

In response to the overwhelming wildfires that have victimized hundreds of Inland Empire residents, Riverside and San Bernardino mayors along with corporate officials met last week at San Bernardino City Hall to announce the formation of a special Fire Victims Relief Fund.

According to Mayor Pat Morris of San Bernardino, launching this fund with all of the partners involved sends a loud and clear message to all of our friends in the community that this is an important moment and opportunity. Mayor Morris said, "Our neighbors have lost their homes and worldly possessions, we need to step forward and contribute in some way to help them get back on their feet."

During his remarks, Mayor Morris highlighted the course of action taken by the two counties in supporting those who have experienced the devastation and aftermath caused by the wildfires.

Mayor Ron Loveridge of Riverside agreed with his colleague in the importance of the two neighboring cities stepping up to make a difference in the lives of victims. He said, "I've heard some say that cities ought to stay within their city limits, understanding the consequences of that, Southern California would be in ashes. The City of Riverside and residents of Riverside want to say by our

MVBCC Hosts 4th Annual Banquet

William H. Batey, II, Valerie Maxwell, Jacob Galba Bright, Delphine Bright and Cheryl Brown

The Moreno Valley Black Chamber of Commerce recognized community members at their 4th annual installation banquet held at the Moreno Valley Conference Center. Music was provided by harpist Antoinette and later during dinner, jazz saxophonist J Boykin. The program was led by Mistress of Ceremonies, Cheryl Brown, Co-publisher, The Black Voice News and District Representative of Senator Gloria Negrete McLeod. Dinner was catered by Salena Taste of Mississippi in Moreno Valley. Mayor Pro Tem, William H. Batey, II of Moreno Valley installed officers and presented a city proclamation to Linda D. Wright, President and CEO. The chambers board of directors were pleased to see over 100 people present. Honorees included: Irene Haynes, Charitable and Humanitarian Award; Charlene Johnson, Small Business of the Year; Quinn Community Outreach Corporation, Non-Profit Business Award; Lea Petersen, The Gas Company, Corporate Business Award; Rosalyn Carter, Volunteer of the Year; Tracy A. Smith, Community Service Award; and Jacqui Proctor Miller, President's Service Award. MVBCC President Linda Wright stated: "I am elated to thank the past and present officers including the volunteers that has played key roles in enabling the MVBCC accomplish what it has in the past four years."

commitment that we understand, as the fires have been close, the victims have had to put their lives back together and we want to do what we can to help by extending a hand."

The businesses and government agencies that stepped forward to provide contributions are: San Manuel Band of Mission Indians with $100,000, Stater Bros. Corporation with $20,000, Arrowhead Credit Union with $20,000, Altura Credit Union with $20,000, San Bernardino District Attorney Michael Ramos in partnership with American Corrective Counseling Services with $20,000, City of Riverside with $20,000, City of San Bernardino with $20,000, County of Riverside with $20,000, Matich Corporation with $10,000, SE Corporation with $5,000, and JJC Project Management with

The Community Foundation of Riverside and San Bernardino Counties will oversee all funds received, and every dollar contributed will go directly to the Fire Victims Relief Fund as reported by President and CEO of the Foundation, Dr. Jim Erickson.

According to Dr. Erickson, "One hundred percent of the funds will go to the victims within the two counties and hopefully we will meet their needs. With the two mayors taking the lead, along with Board of Supervisors Dennis Hansberger and John Tavaglione, it's just the right combination. That's what I'm impressed with. I'm also impressed with the variety of organizations that have come forward, and San Manuel for setting the tone with the $100,000 commitment."

Representing the Office of Mayor Pat Morris, Peggy Hazlett explained, "After the 2003 fires, cash relief was one of the immediate needs for our communities who were directly impacted. The dollars raised through this effort will go directly to fire victims and more importantly, they won't have to go through a long process of filling out paperwork, they will have a simple application process and receive the necessary funds. I think the most significant part about this is that one hundred percent of the funds go to victims of the fire."

For information on how to contribute to this fund please contact Michael S. Tracey at The Community Foundation, Riverside by calling (951) 684-4194 ext. 116.

AIDS Walk/Los Angeles Raises 3.9 Million

San Gabriel High School National Honor Society a part of the many high school students who volunteered for AIDS WALK

The Black Voice News

LOS ANGELES

By Lea Michelle Cash

According to the 2007 Terrence Higgins Trust Report by the close of 2005, there were an estimated 40.3 million people living with HIV/AIDS world wide. According to the 2006 Henry J. Kaiser Family Foundation report, at the end of 2004, an estimated 1,039,000 to 1,185,000 persons in the United States were living with HIV/AIDS, with 24% to 27% undiagnosed and unaware of their HIV infection. The report further states that approximately 17,011 people died due to AIDS in 2005 alone and there have been over 55,000 AIDS related deaths since 1981. According to the 2006 California Department of Health Services, California ranks second in the country exceeded only by New York in the total number of AIDS cases since 1980.

The above reports were written one and two years ago. Now with the year 2007 about to close, the numbers are steadily climbing, and the staggering amount of people affected with HIV/AIDS is incomprehensible. This year more than any other year in the history of AIDS WALK/LOS ANGELES, people came from all over Southern California to show their support in raising money to fight against AIDS. The event was truly the vision of Dr. Martin Luther King's dream when Jews and Gentiles, white, black, yellow and even green joined hands together to fight a good fight towards the betterment of civil rights. In this case the modern day dream applied to putting out a terrible killer to all of humanity known as AIDS.

It was a beautiful thing to see especially regarding all the young people involved. That is why on Sunday, October 21, 2007 the Los Angeles AIDS Walk raised 3.9 million dollars. Never before in the 23-year-history of this Walk has such a staggering amount of money been raised.

Participants, who take part in the challenge of raising funds for the AIDS Walk, ask friends, family members, co-workers and neighbors to sponsor them for the 10 kilometers (6.2 miles) they walk. The Walk begins and ends at San Vicente Boulevard, between Melrose Avenue and Santa Monica Boulevard, in West Hollywood.

At this year's event there were many celebrities that participated in the fund raising endeavor. They were celebrity hosts: Michelle Bonilla (ER), Andrea movie "Hairspray" Oscar winner Shirley Jones introduced Anika Noni Rose. When Anika finished singing her heart felt version of "You'll Never Walk Alone" she got emotional and let the tears just fall. She belted out the song with all her heart and the cheers and tears just kept on coming from the crowd of walkers and the many celebrity guests sitting on stage with her.

Bowen (Desperate Housewives), Kelly Carlson (NIP/Tuck), Michelle Clunis & Thea Gill (Queer as Folk, Dante Cove), Wilson Cruz & Darryl Stephens (Noah's Arc), Faith Ford (Carpoolers), Scott Grimes (ER), TR Knight & Sara Ramirez (Grey's Anatomy), Holly Madison (Girls Next Door), Kimberly McCullough & Jason Thompson (General Hospital), Ana Ortiz (Ugly Betty), Jai Rodriguez (Queer Eye), Jenifer Lewis (Sister Act, Who's Your Caddy) and Anika Noni Rose (Dreamgirls) performed. Jenifer sang, "I Know Where I've Been" from the

This year there were 3,500 volunteers that contributed more than 50,000 hours to AIDS WALK/ Los Angeles. The leading fundraisers for last year's event were Hilton Family of Hotels (93,772), and Mac Cosmetics (87,737). DreamWorks (81,420) Toyota Motor Sales (72,550) and Crossroads Teen AIDS Ambassadors (55, 471) just to name a few. There are 22 organizations that directly benefit from the AIDS WALK/Los Angeles which includes the Minority AIDS Project, which is the first community-based HIV/AIDS organization established and managed by people of color in the United States offering HIV/AIDS related health services and education to the African American and Latino communities.

Children read books and earn free tickets to SEUSSICAL™

The Black Voice News

RIVERSIDE

Brandon Hardy of Riverside reads up at Riverside Public Library to get ready for Performance Riverside's productions of SEUSSICAL.

Performance Riverside and Riverside Public Library are teaming up to double the fun of any child who loves reading. With Performance Riverside's production of Seussical™, the musical based on the well loved books of Dr. Seuss, running at Riverside City College Campus' Landis Performing Arts Center November 9th through 18th, two of the cultural mainstays of the burgeoning Riverside Arts Scene have worked together to create an innovative approach to promote literacy and the performing arts.

Children may pick up a "Dr. Seuss Reading Card" at any Riverside Public Library branch. Children who check out and read any eight books by Dr. Seuss may validate these cards with the library staff. Children who bring the signed and stamped cards to the Landis Performing Arts Center Box Office on the Riverside City College Campus are eligible to receive one free child's ticket for a 2 pm performance of Seussical™ on either November 10th or 17th. Up to four qualifying children may attend per paid adult admission.

Based on the books of beloved children's author Dr. Seuss, Seussical™ is a montage of Seuss' most whimsical and wonderful characters, brought to the stage by Lynn Ahrens and Stephen Flaherty, the award-winning creators of Broadway hits Ragtime, Once on this Island, and My Favorite Year. The Cat in the Hat, an outside observer, acts as the narrator who leaps into the action to create fun, as heroic Horton the Elephant endeavors to protect the people of Whoville, who live on a tiny speck of dust. Characters and settings from seventeen Seuss masterpieces are woven into the action, including Green Eggs and Ham, Yertle the Turtle; The Lorax, Horton Hatches the Egg, The Sneetches, and How the Grinch Stole Christmas.

As Rey O'Day, Performance Riverside's Producing Artistic Director, observes, "Young people's lives are enriched by reading and attending live theatre. Dr. Seuss has authored many favorite stories with characters such as Horton, Cat in the Hat, Gertrude Mc Fuzz, the Grinch, and countless others that lend themselves perfectly to a musical production."

Performance Riverside is a professional theatrical production company operating in the Landis Performing Arts Center under the authority of the Riverside Community College District, providing top-quality performing arts for the people of Riverside, California, and its environs. While concentrating on the American musical, Performance Riverside seeks to engage, inspire, educate, entertain, bring together, and enlighten this diverse community with the magic of live performance.

Riverside Public Library serves a fast growing community of approximately 300,000 covering 85 square miles. With a collection of approximately 600,000 books and other library materials, as well as 125 public access computers and an annual circulation of 1.2 million, RPL is a major provider of information services and cultural programs in California's Inland Empire.

"What could be more fun than Dr. Seuss characters coming to life?" says Sue Struthers, Youth Services Librarian for Riverside Public Library. "RPL is thrilled to help families share the magic of Dr. Seuss on paper and on stage."

For more information contact the Riverside Public Library at (951) 826-5369, or the Landis Performing Arts Center Box Office at (951) 222-8100.
